

WHEN IT RAINS IT POURS

April Come She Will

The garden writer Henry Mitchell said that you can't get from Winter to Spring without going through March.

Well, we made it, but it's been a wild ride with see-sawing temperatures, high winds, and repeated threats of worse weather than actually transpired. For this we give thanks.

Now we are ready to move into April: showers/flowers, the cruelest month, and all that.

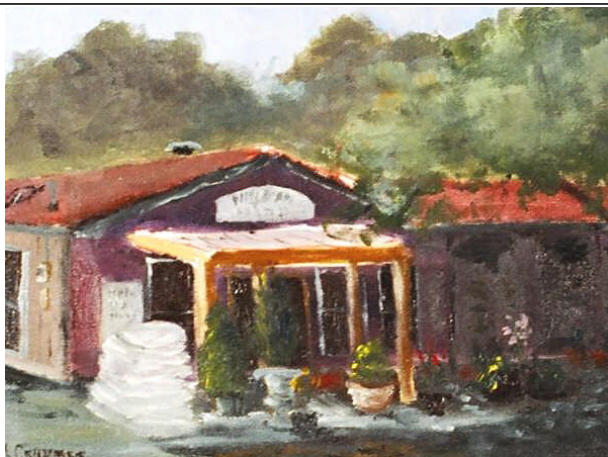

I don't know. I've always liked April. She seems soft, though often fickle. She lacks the ragged claws of March. She's not as relentlessly cheerful as May, nor as sultry as her summer sisters.

April is the little girl in the Morton Salt ads, clad in yellow and carrying her umbrella.

Or so I've always believed.

Art in the Garden – Spring Edition

Our Art in the Garden celebrations last year were so much fun, we decided to make them annual events.

On Saturday and Sunday, April 18 - 19, we will be celebrating Spring with our open house at White Wagon Farm. And the artists at Sage House Gallery will join the festivities by providing live demonstrations of painting and drawing and a Clothesline Sale of unframed works (drawings, paintings and photographs).

Jack Cornett and Evelyn Krzeszinski, new at White Wagon this Spring, will be here -- Evelyn to help you select your plants, and Jack to talk about vegetables and vegetable gardening. And Tammy Pope (who makes the wonderful soaps available at Sage House Gallery) will be here to talk about Heirloom Tomato varieties.

If you want to talk about art, Pat White, Jan and Marvin Crummer, David Cook, Bill Lewis, Tom Herrin, Shirley Brainard, Rita Mackintosh, Amy Ness, and Suzanne Waggoner will be around. And we hope we can talk Ben Waggoner into playing his keyboard again.

We will have herbal treats, lots of new plants and fun times for everyone. So help us pray for a sunny weekend, and come join us for our Spring Celebration. (And be sure to check out the Double Pink Knock-Out Roses....)

Detailed schedules of demonstration times will be available on the website soon. (See the link below.)
